INTRODUCTION.

HEREWITH we present to our patrons this our first DIRECTORY OF ALTON CITY AND COUNTY OF MADISON, upon which we have spared neither time nor expense in endeavoring to make it a faithful index.

The compiling of a Directory is always a task of no mean magnitude, being peculiarly susceptible to errors. But we have brought to this work the experience of several years in other and larger cities and have conscientiously endeavored to make this work a credit to our patrons as well as ourselves, and trust that upon examination it will be found satisfactory.

It is our intention to renew the Directory in 1888, when it will be more extended and varied in its contents, and we hope that before we begin our next canvass in Alton that the City Aldermen will enforce the ordinance relating to the numbering of houses. By a careful calculation, we find the population of Alton to be 11,690.

Hoping that our first work has been of such a character as to gain for us the confidence of the people, and to cause them to retain their patronage for us in 1888, and with thanks extended to business men generally, who have so liberally patronized this work, we remain,

Yours Respectfully,

J. E. FITZPATRICK & Co.

HISTORY

MADISON COUNTY.

[Madison County Court House, Edwardsville.]

The County of Madison, so named probably after the President of the United States during whose administration it was organized, lies just below the 39th degree of north latitude on the west of Illinois. The Mississippi river is its western boundary; the Missouri entering the former stream nearly at a right angle pours in its great flood of waters opposite, and the Illinois adds its stream a few miles above. No interior portion of America is more favored by nature with access to the water courses of trade, than the region lying on the Mississippi between the mouth of the Ohio and the Illinois. The Mississippi Valley is the garden of the world, and this is its center. For a proper understanding of the history of Madison county it may be well to insert a preliminary sketch of the history of the whole region once known as the "Illinois Country."

This vast region appears to have been first heard of by the French Jesuits in 1656, from a party of Algonquins, who accompanied two young Frenchmen on their return to Quebec, after two years wanderings in the wilds. These informed the inquiring fathers that there were a great number of nations inhabiting the country adjacent to the Puants, who seem to have inhabited the country about what is now called Green Bay, but which is marked on the Jesuit missionaries' map of 1670-1 as the "Baye des Puans." Among these they enumerated the Linionuck a word in which subsequent historians have recognized an attempt at representing the name afterwards spelled Illinois. In an enumeration of Indian tribes made in 1658, we find a similar attempt in the word Alinouck. Again in the Relation of 1660, we find mention by hearsay from the Indians of "the great nation of the Alinouec" living on the banks of a great river, and in that of 1667 of the Uniouek, a tribe believing in a "great and good spirit, who made heaven and earth." In the Relation of 1670 we find the Illinois enumerated among the nations connected with the "Mission du Saint Esprit" on Lake Superior. In 1671 there appears the same spelling in a chapter entitled "Some particulars of the Nation of the Illinois, and more especially of their natural goodness and kindness." Mention is made of "the great river called the Mississippi," of "the great extent of country without trees or wood," and of persons seen who had been in their territory.

Through this twilight we come to the period of actual discovery by Father Marquette in 1673, the settlement of Kaskaskia and Cahokia about 1683, the same year that Philadelphia was settled. The country came under French control and remained until 1763, when it passed into the hands of the English for a period of fifteen years, then by the conquest of George Rogers Clark into the possession of Virginia, and was established the "County of Illinois" in 1778. By Virginia it was ceded to the United States Government in 1784, and was made a part of the North Western Territory by the ordinance of 1787. In 1800, by division of territory it became part of the Indian Territory, and in 1809 first acquired an independent existence as the Illinois Territory, which in 1818 was converted into a State.

It was under the Illinois Territory that the County of Madison was organized. Previous to that period, we have first the county of St. Clair organized by Governor St. Clair in person at Kaskaskia in the early part of 1790. Six years later perhaps, in 1796, the county of Randolph was similarly organized, and in the first legislative body of the North Western Territory convened at Cincinnati in 1800, we find according to Burnet's Notes, St. Clair represented by Shadrach Bond and Randolph by John Edgar. "The Western Annals" differ in giving Knox county (including the Illinois country), as represented by Shadrach Bond. St. Clair county as organized in 1790 included the present territory of Madison. But the respective limits of St. Clair and Randolph, between 1796 and 1812, I find nowhere given.

On the 16th of September, 1812, the county of Madison, with others, was organized by proclamation of Governor Edwards. Its exact limits at that period are difficult to ascertain. Governor Reynolds in a letter to the writer in 1861, said, "I think the original limits of Madison county when Gov. Edwards & Co., formed it were, bounded on the south by the line dividing townships two and three north and on the west by the Mississippi. The northern limits, I think reached to the north pole, and on the east was the Wabash river for a limit." According to the map of Illinois and Missouri published by Tanner in 1823, it comprised in that year the same territory it now contains with the exception that townships 5-5, and 6-5, were all within its limits.

At that time, 1823, if we may rely upon the authenticity of Mr. Tanner's map, the towns of the county were Troy, Marine Settlement, Madison, (situated northeast of Marine Settlement,) Edwardsville, Paddock's Settlement, Johnsonport, (below the mouth of Wood river,) Gibraltar, (above the mouth of Wood river,) Milton, Lower Alton, Upper Alton and Salu, the three last of which were marked down in township 5-9. Monk's Mound was translated half-a-dozen miles, and set down near the spot where Nameoki station is.

In 1825, by act of the Legislature, a tract of country eighteen miles long by twenty wide, and embracing parts of the present counties of Macoupin and Montgomery, was attached to Madison temporarily.

In 1843 eighteen sections on the northeast part of the county were by legislative enactment set off to Bond county, and since that period no changes have taken place in boundaries of the county, except those made by the Mississippi, or rather its great confluent, the Missouri.

The natural features of the country are more strongly marked than in the interior of the State. The majestic bluffs of the Mississippi tower a rocky wall along its shore from the mouth of the Illinois to Alton, and then sweeping inland around the great "American Bottom" round their fronts into grassy sloped hills that go down more gently to the fertile fields that stretch out below. From these one may look across upon the wide deep forests and distant hills of the Missouri, or upon the rich fields and waving harvests and dotting lakes of the great "American Bottom." Farther inland we find the rich lands of Ridge Prairie, pronounced by a veteran, after sixty years' observation, to be the finest in the State, and farther still the grove crowned eminences of the rolling prairies about Highland, the whole diversified by streams and forests. The forests and prairies are more suitably distributed than in most parts of the State, scarcely any portions of the county being without an abundant supply of good timber, consisting mostly of oak.

The soil in the county is mostly of excellent quality—and in the American Bottom, extending from Alton, a distance of more than thirty miles through the county it is of almost unsurpassed fertility.

The most important streams in the county are the Mississippi, forming the western boundary, the Great and Little Piasa, Wood River, east and west forks, Indian Creek, Paddock's Creek, Judy's Creek, Cahokia Creek, Silver Creek, Canteen Creek and Sugar Creek, besides other smaller streams.

Long Lake and Horse Shoe Lake are two small bodies of fresh water in the south western part of the county. The latter appears in the old transcripts of titles under the name of Marias Mensoui.

The principal prairies, whose names are now, however, fast fading away, are Scarrit's Prairie, Round Prairie, Rattan's Prairie, Six Coal is mined north of Alton on the Chicago road, where, however, the beds are thin; at Bethalto and Moro, on the Terre Haute railroad, where the beds are five to seven feet in thickness; at Edwardsville, Collins- ville, and to some extent at Highland. These are often, but not in- variably rock-roofed, the coal sometimes lying immediately next the earth and endangering the miner.

Near the southern border lies the principal of these large natural formations known as the "Cantine mounds," and to which the learned and the credulous have generally been inclined to assign an artificial origin. Even the learned author of the "Archæology of the United States," says "The large mound developments, formerly existing on the Kaskaskia and Cahokia rivers in Illinois display traits of the Toltecan arts of building and of their religion and mythological ideas. The one in question is Monk's Mound, so called from having been for a few years the residence of the Monks of La Trappe. It is a quadrangle of earth six hundred yards in circumference, and perhaps one hundred feet high—an island of some primeval lake, which may have been used by a savage, as well as a monk, for religious purposes.

GEOLOGY.

The geology of the county, though varied as compared with that of the inland counties, is not of special interest. The strata exposed along the Mississippi shore are, beginning with the lower which only appear about the northern line of the county, subcarboniferous rocks mostly limestones, carboniferous limestone, coal sometimes cropping out in the ravines, loess and other quarternary deposits. The strata seem dipped southward and inland. These river strata furnish valuable building material, particularly in the older limestone; excellent lime, which is largely manufactured at Alton; and cement stone, a vein of which over six feet in thickness has lately been discovered at Clifton, three miles above Alton. SOIL.

The soils of the county are varied and interesting. That of townships 3-9, 4-9, 3-10 and 4-10, and part of 3-8 and 4-8, is the rich alluvial of the American Bottom; a soil unsurpassed probably by any in the world for inexhaustible fertility. Along its northern border stretches the "Sand Ridge, a large sand bar four or five miles in length and one or two in breadth, that some convulsion of nature has left some miles away from the river. The loess or bluff formation of the Alton river bluffs is found also along the inland range of bluffs, and proves a most valuable fruit soil for the more susceptible and delicate fruits. The peaches and grapes of Alton have already a wide celebrity. Ridge Prairie extending nearly through the county in a north and south line and nearly on a "divide" between the Mississippi and Kaskaskia rivers we have already mentioned as of notable fertility. The northern and eastern portion of the county, though less fertile, is without exception of good quality, and specially fitted for winter wheat and fruits.

AGRICULTURAL.

The principal productions of the county are corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, and some buckwheat; corn being the staple, though considerable quantities of excellent fall wheat, are also raised in some parts of the county. Among grasses, timothy, red top, blue grass and Hungarian are the most common. All the common root crops do well, and are raised in large quantities for the market. Madison County is well known as an extensive fruit growing country, and ships yearly large quantities of apples, peaches, pears, etc., to the St. Louis and Chicago markets. Considerable attention has been paid of late years to the introduction of choice breeds of cattle, and especially sheep, of which there are a number of fine flocks in the county, principally of fine woolled Merinos, the wool from which is often not inferior in quality to that of the best varieties in the Eastern and New England States.

Collinsville Progress,

A WEEKLY JOURNAL

Published in the interests of Madison and St. Clair Counties in particular and Southern Illinois in general.

TERMS:—$1.50 per Annum in Advance.

The PROGRESS is a lively four-page Weekly paper which prints all the news in an intelligent manner and concise form. It has a large circulation among the farming and industrial classes in this section of the State, and by skill and enterprise has extended its influence far beyond the limits of ordinary weeklies. It is rapidly building up a subscription list that will compare favorably with many older journals.

As an advertising medium the PROGRESS is second to no other journal in the county. Send for a sample copy and judge of its value. The patronage accorded it by home advertisers is a guarantee of its worth as an advertising medium. Write for terms.

JOB PRINTING.

The PROGRESS Book and Job Department is among the best equipped Printing Establishments in Southern Illinois, and all orders for English or German printing will receive prompt attention.

The City of Alton is located directly upon the mouth of the Mississippi river, eight miles above the mouth of the Missouri, and eighteen below the mouth of the Illinois, thus commanding the navigation of these three great arteries of commerce; a location unequalled in facilities for water communication by any city in the State. The river bluffs at this point rise to the height of from 220 to 240 feet above the river. Upon the slopes of these bluffs overlooking the fertile valley of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, is built this prosperous and picturesque city.

The city government is vested in a Mayor and Board of Aldermen. The present Mayor is the Hon. John W. Coppinger; City Clerk, James McNulty.

In addition to its unsurpassed river facilities, Alton is convenient of access by rail from all parts of the State. It is 24 miles from St. Louis and 260 from Chicago. It is on the main line of the Chicago & Alton road, and is the starting point of the Kansas City branch of that road. The Indianapolis & St. Louis road furnishes direct connection with Eastern and Southern Illinois; and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy Eastern and Southern Illinois; and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy direct connection with the great Wabash system. The Chicago & Alton, Indianapolis & St. Louis, and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy furnish almost hourly connection with the railway network centering at St. Louis. It is thus seen that Alton is on the line of the three greatest railroad systems of the State.

By the census of 1880, Alton city proper contained a population of 8,975. It has now nearly 12,000. Upper Alton, two miles distant from the City Hall, has a population of 850. North Alton has a population of 800. The adjacent country is densely populated. Taking the High School Building as a center, a circle drawn with a radius of two miles will embrace a population of almost 15,000. The county has a population of over 52,000. The city has a river front of nearly two miles. It is laid out at right angles, the main business houses occupying the streets parallel with and adjacent to the river. The residences are built upon the slopes of the hills, the elevated plateau of Middletown, and on the bluffs overlooking the river. The business houses are handsome, substantial brick structures.

CITY OF ALTON.

The City of Alton, Madison County, was incorporated in 1837. It is located directly upon the Mississippi river, eight miles above the mouth of the Missouri, and eighteen below the mouth of the Illinois, thus commanding the navigation of these three great arteries of commerce; a location unequalled in facilities for water communication by any city in the State. The river bluffs at this point rise to the height of from 220 to 240 feet above the river. Upon the slopes of these bluffs overlooking the fertile valley of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, is built this prosperous and picturesque city.

GOVERNMENT.

The city government is vested in a Mayor and Board of Aldermen. The present Mayor is the Hon. John W. Coppinger; City Clerk, James McNulty.

ACCESSIBILITY.

In addition to its unsurpassed river facilities, Alton is convenient of access by rail from all parts of the State. It is 24 miles from St. Louis and 260 from Chicago. It is on the main line of the Chicago & Alton road, and is the starting point of the Kansas City branch of that road. The Indianapolis & St. Louis road furnishes direct connection with Eastern and Southern Illinois; and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy Eastern and Southern Illinois; and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy direct connection with the great Wabash system. The Chicago & Alton, Indianapolis & St. Louis, and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy furnish almost hourly connection with the railway network centering at St. Louis. It is thus seen that Alton is on the line of the three greatest railroad systems of the State.

POPULATION AND IMPROVEMENTS.

By the census of 1880, Alton city proper contained a population of 8,975. It has now nearly 12,000. Upper Alton, two miles distant from the City Hall, has a population of 850. North Alton has a population of 800. The adjacent country is densely populated. Taking the High School Building as a center, a circle drawn with a radius of two miles will embrace a population of almost 15,000. The county has a population of over 52,000.

The city has a river front of nearly two miles. It is laid out at right angles, the main business houses occupying the streets parallel with and adjacent to the river. The residences are built upon the slopes of the hills, the elevated plateau of Middletown, and on the bluffs overlooking the river. The business houses are handsome, substantial brick structures.

ures, while the many elegant and costly residences speak of the presence of wealth and refinement.

All the main streets are paved and macadamized; there are within the city limits twelve miles of macadamized streets, and twenty miles of sidewalks. Four of the main thoroughfares are macadamized from two to four miles beyond the city limits, forming substantial roads to the coal mines, to Upper Alton Station and to Alton Junction.

A street railroad, two miles and a half long, connects Alton and Upper Alton.

The Alton Telephone Exchange connects all leading business houses, depots and public buildings in Alton, North Alton and Upper Alton, and during the past year has been extended to all parts of the county and to St. Louis.

JOURNALISTIC.

Alton has three daily and four weekly newspapers: Alton Telegraph, daily and weekly; DEMOCRAT, daily and weekly; Sentinel, daily and weekly; Banner (German) weekly.

NATURAL RESOURCES.

In valuable natural resources Alton stands pre-eminent. Its great stone quarries produce immense quantities of lime-stone, superior building stone, macadam and ballast.

Exhaustible quantities of yellow clay, which makes excellent brick.

An unlimited supply of best river sand.

Extensive coal mines adjoin the city limits.

Alton lime, the finest and purest in the West.

Immense deposits of fire-brick clay are found in the immediate vicinity, which is manufactured into fire-brick, roofing tile, sewer-pipe, drain-tile, pottery, etc.

Cement rock is found in vast quantities four miles above the city on the river bank.

White sand, used by the glass works, is found in the vicinity in immense deposits.

ECONOMY IN BUILDING.

Building material can be found in Alton of better quality and cheaper in price than at any other point in the State, and buildings of any desired style of architecture can be erected here far more economically than elsewhere in the west. (1) The best and purest lime in the State is manufactured here. (2) The best and purest lime in the here within the city limits for the cost of hauling. (3) The best quality of brick found in the West, and susceptible of high finish, is made here. (4) The finest grades of building stone are quarried here of any desired dimensions. (5) Fire-brick, drain-tile, sewer-pipe, etc., are made at our home factories, and can be had free of freight charges. (6) Lumber, and furnished by our saw mills or planing mills in any required dimensions, can be provided here as cheap as any other city in the State can furnish it.

SANITARY CONDITIONS.

The sanitary conditions of Alton are so perfect, its drainage so complete, and its water supply so abundant, that the good health of its people is proverbial. Filth diseases are of very rare occurrence. The elevation of 240 feet above the river insures pure air and perfect drainage.

EDWARDSVILLE.

EDWARDSVILLE, the county seat of Madison County, is situated in the western central part of the county, 14 miles from Alton and 18 miles from St. Louis. It was settled as early as 1812, and is named after Hon. Ninian Edwards, the first governor of Illinois Territory, who resided at Edwarsville. At an early day it became a popular centre made so by the establishment of the Indian agency and the land offices. It was incorporated as a town in 1837 under the general incorporation act of 1831. In 1853 it was re-incorporated as a town by a special act of the Legislature. In 1872 it was organized as a city under the general law.

The Madison County Railroad connecting with the Alton Packet Company at the Mississippi river, and with the C. & A. and I. & St. L. railroads at a point eight miles distant from Edwarsville and known as Edwardsville crossing, was built in 1867-68. The Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific ran its St. Louis division along its northern boundary of the corporation in 1869-70, and in 1881-82 the T. C. & St. L. narrow gauge, which is at this time being reconstructed into a standard gauge was built through the southern limits. The Pacific and American express companies have offices in the city. The Central Union Telephone company sustains an exchange.

The chief industrial enterprises are flouring mills, coal mines, machine and hand brick yards, carriage factory, sugar refinery, machine shop, marble works, elevators and numerous minor establishments. The principal shipments are coal, flour, grain, produce and live stock. Edwardsville being surrounded by some of the largest and best farms in the State.

The improvements of the city are of a substantial character, comprising many large business establishments and numerous handsome private residences. A large commodious opera house and several substantial business blocks are among recent additions.

The city has two solid banking institutions, a prosperous building association and three newspapers, the Intelligencer, Republican and Democrat.

During late years commendable progress has been made in public improvements. Several streets have been macadamized and the work is being continued. The city maintains a well organized volunteer fire company and is well supplied with "fire" cisterns. The expenditures for these purposes have been defrayed with but a trifling city tax.

The opportunities for intellectual, moral and religious culture are ample. The city has an excellent system of graded schools, with an endowment of over 700 scholars, and ably conducted Catholic schools which give tuition to about 100 scholars, churches of the Catholic (Irish and German), Baptist, Methodist (English and German), German Lutheran, African M. E. and African Baptist denominations are sustained.

The various secret organizations have strong branches, and the Turners and Singers are well organized, the Turners owning a handsome hall. A public library was founded in 1879 and is self-sustaining. A beautiful public park is located almost in the heart of the city.

In the line of manufacturing the city has made comparatively slow progress, but its natural advantages cannot fail in the near future to attract attention. Coal can be had at less than $1 a ton, the supply of water is abundant and the facilities for transportation are equal to those of any point within a radius of one hundred miles of St. Louis.

The population now is estimated at 3,600, an increase of 600 since the census of 1880 and prospects for continued growth are most flattering.

Alders KILLINGER.

COLLINSVILLE is situated on an elevated plateau two or three miles east of the great American Bottom, and about ten miles east of St. Louis, immediately on the Vandavia railroad.

The first settlement was made here in 1816; a village was laid out in 1837 and incorporated in 1850, and in 1872 the organization was changed to that of a city. The U. S. census of 1880 gave in round numbers 3,000 inhabitants, but a careful census made in 1885 showed an increase to nearly 3,800 souls, making Collinsville the second city in population in Madison County.

Collinsville boasts of an intelligent, moral, enterprising and thrifty population, representing native Americans from nearly all the States, and Europeans from nearly every country.

The public schools of this city have become noted at home and abroad for their great excellence, and the parochial schools are ably and successfully conducted. Surrounded by a dense population of thrifty small farmers the commercial interests of the place are of no mean importance, and the merchants are wide-awake and fully abreast with the times. Perhaps few places within a radius of many hundred miles present greater advantages for manufacturing enterprises, but for some reason not many of these have so far located here.

Within two miles of Collinsville are situated ten or twelve extensive coal mines, mostly operated by machinery, and producing the very finest quality of bituminous coal from a vein varying in thickness from six to eight feet.

The well known and reliable banking firm of Belt Bros., & Co., J. I. Dillard, president, furnish ample banking accommodations for the city and surrounding country.

Two weekly newspapers, "The Progress," democratic, and the "Herald," neutral, are published here, amply supplying this field for local purposes.

As a place of residence few towns in the west present so many advantages and attractions as Collinsville. Located as before said, on a plateau, which is elevated some two hundred feet above the banks of the Mississippi river at St. Louis, and surrounded by a high rolling country, with an abundance of pure water and an atmosphere free from all deleterious and noxious elements, the healthfulness is assured beyond that of most other places.

The buildings, especially some of the residences, are handsome, and a degree of local pride prompts its citizens to vie with each other in beautifying their homes and the streets with beautiful flowers, shrubbery and trees, giving the city a charming rural aspect, exceedingly restful and refreshing to citizens and strangers. Excellent roads and sylvan drives abound in and around the place, and the beautiful groves and well-kept cemeteries add pleasing effects to the neighborhood. The celebrated "Horse Shoe" and "Long" lakes, only a few miles north, afford excellent sport with boat, gun and rod.

Possessing so many advantages, only a portion of which have been enumerated, it is not strange that Collinsville has attracted attention as a suburban home for the business men and others of the western metropolis, St. Louis. Only 30 minutes run by rail from that city, a number of gentlemen doing business there find it convenient and pleasant to make their homes here, and there is scarcely a doubt that this place will in the near future become the most important suburban residence for the people of our overcrowded neighbor.

COLLINSVILLE is situated on an elevated plateau two or three miles east of the great American Bottom, and about ten miles east of St. Louis, immediately on the Vandavia railroad.

The first settlement was made here in 1816; a village was laid out in 1837 and incorporated in 1850, and in 1872 the organization was changed to that of a city. The U. S. census of 1880 gave in round numbers 3,000 inhabitants, but a careful census made in 1885 showed an increase to nearly 3,800 souls, making Collinsville the second city in population in Madison County.

Collinsville boasts of an intelligent, moral, enterprising and thrifty population, representing native Americans from nearly all the States, and Europeans from nearly every country.

The public schools of this city have become noted at home and abroad for their great excellence, and the parochial schools are ably and successfully conducted. Surrounded by a dense population of thrifty small farmers the commercial interests of the place are of no mean importance, and the merchants are wide-awake and fully abreast with the times. Perhaps few places within a radius of many hundred miles present greater advantages for manufacturing enterprises, but for some reason not many of these have so far located here.

Within two miles of Collinsville are situated ten or twelve extensive coal mines, mostly operated by machinery, and producing the very finest quality of bituminous coal from a vein varying in thickness from six to eight feet.

The well known and reliable banking firm of Belt Bros., & Co., J. I. Dillard, president, furnish ample banking accommodations for the city and surrounding country.

Two weekly newspapers, "The Progress," democratic, and the "Herald," neutral, are published here, amply supplying this field for local purposes.

As a place of residence few towns in the west present so many advantages and attractions as Collinsville. Located as before said, on a plateau, which is elevated some two hundred feet above the banks of the Mississippi river at St. Louis, and surrounded by a high rolling country, with an abundance of pure water and an atmosphere free from all deleterious and noxious elements, the healthfulness is assured beyond that of most other places.

The buildings, especially some of the residences, are handsome, and a degree of local pride prompts its citizens to vie with each other in beautifying their homes and the streets with beautiful flowers, shrubbery and trees, giving the city a charming rural aspect, exceedingly restful and refreshing to citizens and strangers. Excellent roads and sylvan drives abound in and around the place, and the beautiful groves and well-kept cemeteries add pleasing effects to the neighborhood. The celebrated "Horse Shoe" and "Long" lakes, only a few miles north, afford excellent sport with boat, gun and rod.

Possessing so many advantages, only a portion of which have been enumerated, it is not strange that Collinsville has attracted attention as a suburban home for the business men and others of the western metropolis, St. Louis. Only 30 minutes run by rail from that city, a number of gentlemen doing business there find it convenient and pleasant to make their homes here, and there is scarcely a doubt that this place will in the near future become the most important suburban residence for the people of our overcrowded neighbor.

GODFREY.

Godfrey, more generally known as Monticello, is situated on the extreme northwestern part of the county, on the Chicago and Alton R. R., four miles from Alton. Population, 300.

The chief feature of Godfrey is the Monticello Ladies Seminary, located there. It is believed that no Seminary can be found in the West where every department is better suited to the wants of its pupils.

For good order, good morals, intelligence and religious culture, few settlements have enjoyed so enviable a reputation as this, and the present beauty and good name of Monticello neighborhood is mainly due to the industry, integrity, temperance and sterling piety of those self-denying pioneers who laid the foundation of society deep and broad and on the firm basis of truth and righteousness. Rob't Crawford, Jr., Post Master.

VENICE.
